The concept of containers is crucial to MLA style. When the source being documented forms part of a larger whole, the larger whole can be thought of as a container that holds the source. For example, a short story may be contained in an anthology. The short story is the source, and the anthology is the container.

MLA in-text citations are brief references in the body of your document which direct your reader to the full reference in the list of Works Cited. You must include an in-text citation whenever you quote, paraphrase, or refer to information from a source. A standard MLA in-text citation includes the author's last name and a page number in parentheses. The page number refers to the exact location of the quote or information that you are citing:
